nothing the government can do to prevent the airline from flying on Shabbar, Attorney-General Elyakim Rubinstein told the government panel charged with plan-ning the company's privatization, according to one of the panel's members.

Rubinstein's opinion was requested ahead of yesterday's. publication of the plan for the national carrier's 100 percent sale on the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange next year.

More than four months after the report should have been published, its government-appointed authors said yesterday that the Shabbat issue would be for the shareholders to consider.

Israel must take intensive action to stop the murder of Arah land dealers accused of selling land to Jews, Defense Minister Yitzhak Mordechai said yesterday, both at a meeting of the Knesset Foreign Affairs and Defense Committee and afterwards to parliamentary reporters.

He said, however, that the diplomatic process with the Palestinians could not be stopped without causing unrest. "At this stage we don't know what level of the Palestinian establishment was responsible for giving the order 10 murder the land dealers. But it is clear that the Palestinian establishment is involved," Mordechai said. "1 think intensive action should be taken to prevent the unbearable pbenomenon of the murder of innocent people by members of the Palestinian establishment.

"However, we must find ways of continuing the diplomatic process between the Palestinians and us and make a comprehensive effort within the process to stop the Palestinians carrying out this type of provocation," he said.

Mordechai told the committee that at a meeting with Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu earlier in the morning, it was decided to "operate all channels" to thwart the murders "and stop the terrible phenomenon, by means of both information and operational activities."

According to an official briefing, he also said attempts would

"I cannot be sure that if a terror cell wants to carry out an attack that we would definitely be able to prevent it," said Mordechai.

He said that although the IDF is taking action, the lack of diplomatic contacts could cause violence to flare up. The murder of the land dealers was later discussed in the Knesset plenum.

PA general secretary Ahmed Ahdel-Rahman said yesterday the PA's han on land sales to Jews has dealt a severe hlow to Israel's settlement drive in the West Bank, But Ahdel-Rahman denied the PLO was behind the killing of Arab land dealers.

The political and information campaign waged by the Israeli government against the Palestinian Authority ... reflects the depth of the blow that has struck Israel's settlement drive on Palestinian land," Abdel-Rahman said in a statement.

Meanwhile, sources involved in purchasing land in eastern Jerusalem said the killing of three Arabs suspected of selling land to Jews may slow down land-buying operations, but the purchases will continue.

"Of course, all the time - this process continued even during the intifada, under the threat of Hamas and Islamic Jihad," said one source, who declined to be identified, because "if you give too many details it can be dangerous to some of the people we are dealing

He said the only effect of last month's murders is that "it slows down the deals, and the prices go higher. What's interesting is that whether [under] the Likud government or ... Labor, the process has always continued. It may be more expensive, and take more time, but they continue selling land " The source said no one has pulled out of any pending deal, but that in the past, deals were frozen for a few months, "depending on the political climate, until things calmed down." In some cases, the seller asks for help in setting up a new life elsewhere.

The World Jewish Restitution Organization will work against the inclusion of Poland, Romania and the Czech Republic in NATO unless they cooperate over the restitution of Jewish communal property.

This was one of two decisions made hy the WJRO council at its meeting, in Jerusalem last night. The second was the establishment of a committee that will report within a month on how to distribute the Swiss humanitarian fund. The committee will comprise representatives of the World Jewish Congress, Jewish Agency and the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee.

The committee has sheen instructed to make aid to Holocausi survivors in Eastern Europe its top priority.

The key evening session of the WJRO council was described hy Jewish Agency Chairman Avraham Burg as "the same old recycled stuff. It's just the same old people having the same old discussions."

There are some 60,000 Holocaust survivors in Eastern Europe, according to Center of Organizations of Holocaust Survivors in Israel secretary-general Noach Flug. But he acknowledged there are others who believe the figure is far higher.

"All the money must go to the neediest survivors, with a certain preference to those in the former eastern hloc," said Flug.

However, WJC chairman in Israel Mati Droblas said Israel must be the focal point for financial distributions worldwide. These payments would be to establish old-age homes in the former Soviet Union and construction of community centers throughont the world.

WJRO vice-chairman Naphtali Lavie hopes bis group will distribute the monies in Europe.

Meanwhile, the National Insurance Institute is completing a report on how it could be the distributor.

Work is being carried out to establish the criteria for survivors to qualify for payments. Legislation would also be required to ensure the payments would not be taxed, according to Lavie.

Supporters of MK Ehnd Barak yesterday feared that the lackluster campaign for the Labor Party chairmanship would result in a low voter turnout in today's primary, something that could reduce Barak's margin of victory, though he is heavily favored to win.

The polls are due to open at 10:00 a.m. in 662 stations nationwide. Some 166,000 registered party members aged 16 and over have the vote. Exit polls should indicate the trend as soon as the ballot counting begins, after the polls close at 10 tonight.

Yesterday's only excitement came in the morning when Barak's three rivals - MKs Yossi Beilin, Ephraim Sneb and Shlomo Ben-Ami - all called on the voters to punish Barak for repeatedly refusing to appear with them.

This, they argued, revealed an elitist and belittling attitude on Barak's part.

All this came to a head early yesterday on Channel 2's moroing news magazine to which all four Labor hopefuls were invited.

Three turned up, but Barak was represented with a cardboard cut-out to underscore his Barak's lieutenant, MK Uzi Baram, replied tersely that "Barak had hetter things to do at that time and does not have to be at every reporter's beck and

There was no drama in this race, Laborites say, largely because Barak's most uncompromising foe, MK Haim Ramon, chose to stay out of the fray. That most believe that Barak is a shoo-in also reduced interest in the campaign.

Polls yesterday continued to show a wide lead for Barak, though many in his camp feared that predictions of his certain victory might keep many of his supporters from bothering to

Hechal Shlomo to become theme park

By HAIM SHAPIRO

Jerusaiem's Hechal Shlomo, formerly the seal of the Chief Rabbinate, is to become a Jewish theme park on the pattern of Walt Disney World, the building's director said this week.

Yeshayahu Barzel said that if all goes well, the huilding should be transformed into its new role, conveying the "Jewish experience," within 18 months, in time for the 50th anniversary of the State of Israel. He said it would be similar to the attractions found at Epcol in Orlando, Florida.

This week Chief Rabbis Yisrael Lau and Eliahu Baksbi-Doron moved to their new quarters in the Yahav Building, near the entrance to Jerusalem. The move ended a long period of dissatisfaction with Hechal Shlomo, built by Sir Isaac Wolfson to house the Chief Rahhinate, but operated hy an independent authority.

PM: Israel cannot ignore killing of Arab residents

By JAY BUSHINSKY

The three gangland-style murders of suspected Palestinian land dealers that occurred during the past month topped Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu's political agenda yesterday.

As the police and General Security Service were authorized to protect the lives of all realestate agents whose lives may be threatened, the government launched an international campaign to condemn the slayings as grave violations of buman rights. "Israel cannot ignore the killing of Arah residents of Jerusalem, just as it cannot look away from an explosion in a Tel Aviv cafe," Netanyahu told Army Radio.

Authority bore direct responsibility for these acts when he said: This government does not intend to conclude a fictional peace characterized by ceremonies in which there are handshakes, after which the terrorism and violence

Arah sector was assailed hy Netanyahu's director of communications, David Bar-Illan. "This issue came up at the ministerial meeting on Jerusalem," Bar-Illan said.

PA spokesmen denied involvement in the three slayings. However, PA Chairman Yasser Arafat was accused of laying the political and ideological ground-work for the bloodshed. PA Justice Minister Freih Ahu Medein suggested at a Gaza symposium on suicide that these land agents should kill themselves."

The Ministerial Committee on Jerusalem not only discussed the murders with Mayor Ehud Olmert, but also what it regarded as unauthorized PA interference in the curriculum used in Jerusalem's Arab schools. This was termed a violation of the Oslo Accords.

The committee also decided to deploy another 400 policemen in Jerusalem and huild another police station in the eastern part of the capital

Liat Collins adds:

According to Israel Radio's English News, a report recently presented to the prime minister states that none of the four Palestinian Authority institutions that were meant to have been closed down in Jerusalem has in fact stopped operating. At a recent cabinet meeting, it was announced that the four had closed or moved outside the capital

The latest report states: "One of the four Palestinian Authority institutions in question, the Jerusalem Committee for Social Welfare, is obviously continuing to operate quite openly. The other three appear to be taking a lower profile, but indications are that they continue to operate as well."

Bus-bomb mastermind pleads guilty

Hassan Salameh, considered the Hamas mastermind behind three suicide bombings, pleaded guilty yesterday at the Erez Military Court to 19 counts of attacking collaborators and planning attacks.

The court recessed until next Monday and in an unusual move said it would help get a permit for Salameh's mother to come from Khan Yunis to attend the trial.

Salameh, 26, is also being tried in a military court in Judea and Samaria after pleading guilty to two suicide bombings last year on No. 18 buses in Jerusalem and a suicide bombing at an Ashkelon soldiers' hitchhiking post. Forty-six people were billed in those attacks. Arieh O'Sullivan killed in those attacks.

Palestinians scuffle with soldiers near Morag

Palesninian demonstrators scuffled with IDF troops yesterday morning outside the settlement of Morag in Gush Katif. Palestinians said that several demonstrators were injured, including a cameraman from Reuters.

However, the Southern Command spokesman said Palestinians started demonstrating after settlers from Morag began erecting a fence in an area under full Israeli control. The spokesman added that IDF officers and liaison officers met with their Palestinian counterparts and set a date to discuss the issue. Settlers said the IDF was replacing old fencing with electronic fencing, adding that contrary to Palestinian claims, there are no plans to expand Morag. Margot Dudkevitch

Mordechai praises pre-army volunteers

The IDF has more than doubled the number of permits for teens who want to defer their army service to volunteer for a year of community service, and will give 1,200 such permits next year.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Mordechai met yesterday with some of the 500 youth who are winding up a year of such volunteer service. They help organize youth in development towns and moshavim, work in hospitals and community centers and help immigrants.

"There is nothing more important than the work you are doing today," Mordechai said. "In contrast to youth who are empty and rejecting and searching, there is a youth who know what they want, who know how they can influence." Arich O'Sullivan

Report: Jihad planning attacks

By HILLEL KUTTLER

WASHINGTON - Pentagon officials believe the Islamic Jihad, at the instigation of Iran, is planning to conduct a wave of terrorist attacks in Israel, according to yesterday's Washington Times. The paper's sources stated that about a dozen Islamic Jihad terrorists began infiltrating Israel early last month in preparation for the attacks, which they say were ordered by the group's secretarygeneral, Ramadan Abdullah Shallah. Iran reportedly promoted the plan, because it wants to see a resumption of attacks against IsraeL The paper quoted an unnamed former CLA official who stated the Jibad terrorists' target is not Israelis, but Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat.

under any circumstances." US officials left yesterday for Israel for this week's semi-annual meetings of the joint political-military group (JPMG). The American delegation is led by Assistant Secretary of State for Political-Military Affairs Thomas McNamara.

CONTEXT / HERB KEINON I N Lack of venom made Labor race a snoozer

The 1992 Labor Party leadership primary, which boiled town to yet another race hetween bitter rivals Shimon Peres and Yitzhak Rabin, provided the country with plenty of fiery restoric and mudslinging. That was a campaign that had beat and emotion.

The Je

The 1993 Likud Party leadership primary, which came down to a nice between Binyamin Netanyahu and David Levy, gave the country sex and a non-existent videotape, is well as great epithets like "eel" and "Napoleon." Now there was dassion.

Today's 1997 Labor Party leader-ship primary, widely viewed as enmity developed. They wrote nothing more than an Ehud Barak coronation, has given the country nothing. Dull. Blah. The Big Yawn. "Politics is like sport," said Ronni Rimon, a media consultant who has been involved in numerous political campaigns, including those of Yitzhak Mordechai, Ehud Olment and Shlomo Lahat. "If you don't hate your rival, you can't beat him." Which is one of the reasons why the current Labor primary has been so boring, so lacking the proverbial "beef." There was no bate: The Peres-Rabin rivalry stretched back years. In the process nasty things about each other in books. They seemed to genuinely dislike each other - prior, at least, to the 1992 general elections and the Great Reconciliation. This high-profile rivalry made for ugly scenes, but exciting campaigns. The same could be said of the Netanyahu-Levy rivalry. Though their dislike for one another did not span the decades, as was the case with Peres and Rabin, the quality of their enmity made up for what it lacked in quantity. This hatred peaked with Netanyahu's televised accusation that "a senior member of the Likud, surrounded by crooks who practice Mafia methods" was behind an alleged attempt to blackmail him over an extramarital affair.

None of this hostility exists between the four Labor candidates vying in today's race. "The candidates don't hate each other enough to make headlines," Rimon said.

"If someone is going to exacerbate the campaign it is going to be the number two in the race," he said. "But look at the personalities involved. They [Labor contenders Yossi Beilin, Shlomo Ben-Ami and Ephraim Snehl don't have aggressive personalities ... 1 am not saying that Beilin is a poodle, but he wages his campaign under the table. The Likud wages its cam-paign above the table."

Motti Morell, a media consultant who played a key role in Netanyahu's recent campaign, as well as Rahin's successful 1992 election campaign, said that one of the reasons for the lack of passion in today's Labor contest is the lack "history" between the candidates. Even the camps that have begun forming around Beilin and Barak are ad-hoc camps, he said, more the result of jumping on a bandwagon than examples of good old-fashioned political camps that follow a candidate through thick and thin. "Political campaigns are wars." Morell said. "It is your army against the enemy. The winning army is the one with the activists, with the camps. The camps are what makes the noise. There are no real camps now in Labor." As a result, he said, there has been little noise.

Another reason Morell said this primary campaign lacked the fury of previous ones is because none of the candidates have succeeded in genninely exciting their supporters.

"People are not overly exciled about Barak," Morell said. "He has not succeeded in creating a close and warm rapport with the voters. People support him because they think he can win, and that there is no one better. As someone was quoted in the paper the other day, the head is with Barak, but not the heart.

Another reason for the lackluster campaign, according to Rimon, is because only Barak really expected to win, while the other three candidates seemed to have entered the race to improve their standing in the party. When winning is not on the agenda, Rimon said, there is not going to be a lot of excilement.

"It was not a fair fight," Rimon said. "It was really no contest. It's like a basketball game. If one of the teams is far superior to the other. and it is clear who is going to win. the crowd is not going to come out and watch."

52 percent is the magic number for Labor's leader

By SARAH HONIG

There is no one anywhere in politics who does not expect frontrunner Ehud Barak to come out well ahead in today's Labor leadership primary. But there is still the question of what will constitute good news for him and what his three rivals - MKs Yossi Beilin, Epbraim Sneb, and Sblomo Ben-Ami - would consider success or failure in their. own races. Since Barak's victory is regarded as a foregone conclusion, interest now centers on the size of that victory. The prevailing wisdom among political observers is that Barak must top or at least equal the 52 percent of the total garnered in February ... 1993 hy Binyamin Netanyahn in the Likud primary, in which four runners raced for the leadership, just as in Labor today. That unequivocal majority bestowed ... percent would help more to upon Netanyahu immunity from challenges. Barak may not face the passionate vendetta which David Levy mounted in the Likud, but potentially no less dangerous for Barak is Labor's oft-proven proclivity to factionalize and to engage in. internecine conflicts whose root causes had long been forgotten. Technically Barak needs only to come away with 40 percent in order to be declared Labor's relatively low burdle would detonate a real bomhshell. A second round is simply not expected by. anyone in the party, despite Beilin's oft-repeated prediction that he would draw Barak into a runoff. . Barak says he would be happy with 48 percent, hut it is no secret in Labor that Netanyahu had made 52 percent the magic target, which - if only for pres-tige purposes - Barak must now try to match

Everyone expects Beilin to come in second and he has been compared to Levy, though when it comes to ideological commitment and gentlemanly demeanor - Ze'ev Begin probably makes for a far more apt analogy. Levy won 26 percent of the Likud total in his showdown with Netanyahu, Such a figure, it is said in Labor, would more than please Beilin, although 30 coment his claim to the No. 2 slot and ward off future challenges from Haim Ramon, who is still waiting in the wings and who has promised to take Barak

He has not been any help to Beilin, hut he may want later to steal Beilin's Failure on his part to jump this ter Beilin would do today, the hy virtue of his also-ran status.

better would be his chances of deterring Ramon and the stronger would be his future claim on the foreign affairs portfolio, be it in a real or a shadow government. That would he a true achievement for Beilin, who, despite being one of the Oslo agreement's progenitors, barely made it into the last Labor government and even that in a very lowly capacity.

Staking claims for future status and portfolios is the name of the game for underdogs Sneh and Ben-Ami. Ben-Ami came from nowhere and barely won placing on the Knesset list last year, and that only after party leader Shimon Peres pulled lots of strings on his behalf.

All that harely belped get him into the Knesset in Labor's last (34th) slot, and even that only thanks to surplus vote deals. Despite his claim to represent the poor Sephardis, Ben-Ami has become the darling of Tel Aviv's trendiest yuppies. If he comes away with 10 percent of the total. he will have performed an incredible political feat.

Polls predict only 4 percent for Sneh and what he wants most now is not to finish last. If one of Labor's stars during the Rabin years is defeated by newcomer Ben-Ami, it would mean a terrihle blow. But if the likahle Sneb comes in third, he will ahle Rubinstein wants withdrawal of anti-missionary bill MK Armon Rubinstein (Meretz) has asked Nissim Zvilli (Labor) and Moshe Gafni (United Torah Judaism) to withdraw their joint private members' bill that would ban the distribution of missionary material, particularly fliers and pamphlets distributed in mail boxes. Rubinstein said the hill, which passed preliminary reading in February, bas provoked an angry reaction among Christian communities that are friendly to Israel. Although Gafni has stressed that the law will not ban anyone from owning or reading the New Testament, this is not the impression given in the foreign press, said Rubinstein. He cited an Israel Radio interview with the ambassador to Britain who said the hill had been incorrectly interpreted there and had caused a serious response even among pro-Israel people.

Knesset panel supports striking psychologists The Knesset Labor and Social Affairs Committee yesterday discussed the ongoing strike by the psychologists in the public sector and voiced unanimous support for the strikers. Committee chairman Maxim Levy (Gesher), called on Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu to help end the strike. "It's inconceivable that at the same time the prime minister is bolding a campaign against domestic violence there are no job slots for psychologists who are meant to deal with the problem," Levy said. Meanwhile, Knesset Education Committee Chairman Emanuel Zissman (Third Way) and MK Ruby Rivlin (Likud) are calling on the government to help end the strike by junior academic staff at Tel Aviv University.

Deri co-defendant denies witness testimony

Rabbi Arye Weinberg, on trial with Shas MK Aryeh Deri for fraud. told the Jerusalem District Court yesterday that much of state's witness Ya'acov Shmuelevitz testimony was untrue.

Weinberg, who headed the Lev Banim Yeshiva where Shmuelevitz succeeded Deri as director, denied Shmuelevitz's testimony that Deri had given or sent the yeshiva a large sum of money in response to a plea for help. Weinberg also denied Shmuelevitz's testimony that Deri had promised him and defendant Yom Tov Rubin NIS 500,000 or NIS 600,000 in funding, if 75 percent of that went back to Shas before the next elections. New Internet site offers info on citizens' rights

An Internet site offering a database with a large amount of information relating to government services and citizens' rights has been opened by the Science Ministry and the Citizens Advisory Service (CAS).

The site, located at http://shil.huji.ac.il, cost NIS 300,000 to set up and was developed by Hebrew University and Ben-Gurion University researchers. It is part of the ministry's project aimed at expanding use of computer telecommunications by increasing awareness in the general public and decisionmakers of its potential.

CAS, run by the Labor and Social Affairs Ministry, supplies advice on rights and liabilities regarding social security, health, disability and legal matters to the various authorities. It supplies 350 volunteers and staffers in 44 towns, answering over 100,000 queries a year. Judy Siegel

All schools going on Internet

Within three years, most of the country's schools will be hooked up to the Internet and to an in-house Intranet allowing pupils to communicate with counterparts in other schools. This is to be made possible by a national school telecommunications project, which will be implemented by a consortium including Tadiran Information Systems, Internet Zahav, Bezeq Zahav, Martnet. Hoffman, and Eshed. The program will be carried out with full cooperation from the Union of Local Authorities and begin as a pilot project in 50 schools. Judy Siegel

J'lm Day proposed as holiday

Knesset Law Committee suggests making 28 Iyar optional work day

By BATSHEVA TSUR

Jerusalem Day - 28 Iyar on the Hebrew calendar - would be an official holiday and an optional day off work, under a draft proposal adopted yesterday by the Knesset Law Committee.

National Religious Party MK Hanan Porat, who put forward the bill, said it had originated with the late deputy defense minister Mordechai Gur, who commanded the troops that captured eastern Jerusalem in 1967.

"It is a fitting legacy to Gur, who said that 'Jerusalem will remain ours forever,' that this law should be brought before the Knesset on the 30th anniversary of the liberation of the law had received the support of almost the entire Jewish membership of the Knesset when introduced originally but that later there had been reservations from some Labor MKs. It was never brought to a second and third reading.

The bill is modelled on the legislation that makes Independence Day a national holiday but does not make it a mandatory vacation day. It allows workers to choose it as one of two optional holidays.

Committee chairman Shaul Yahalom (NRP) said the government supported the proposed legislation.

MK Dedi Zucker (Meretz), however, said

city," Porat told the committee. He said the that "not all the citizens of this country get up on Jerusalem Day with the same feelings in their hearts as on Independence Day ... Jerusalem Day lacks the authenticity of a real boliday." he said. "Legislation does oot create a norm of festivity." Zucker later abstained in the vote.

Third Way MK Alex Lubotzky noted that the connection of certain segments of the population to Jerusalem was waning.

"Making Jerusalem a very religious city means that certain sectors feel cut off and this is a real problem. We have to turn Jerusalem again into a national issue. especially because of the upcoming negotiations over the city," be said.

Recalling the tremendous national excitement 30 years ago when Jerusalem was reunited, Labor MK Yael Dayan said: Jerusalem does not require any special holidays. It is part of our national calendar and united forever - though not for the Arab citizens who were conquered. It is so close to Independence Day and all the festivities for that day are in Jerusalem. So why do we have to mark it with another special holiday?" Dayan's reference to the city's "conquest" irked Jerusalem Mayor Ehud Olmert, who attended part of the meeting. "I can't understand how there can be a Jew who does not want Jerusalem Day," he said.

Knesset panel calls for more Ethiopian immigration

By LIAT COLLINS

The government should bring here within a few months the Falash Mura waitiog in Addis Ababa to immigrate to Israel, the Knesset Immigration and Absorption Committee determined io its conclusions and recommendations oo the problem presented yesterday.

The committee discussed a motion by MK Adisu Massala (Labor) and MK Hanan Porat (National Religious Party) who recently visited Addis Ababa. "The Interior Ministry's policy of dragging out the immigration process of the Falash Mura is prolonging the suffering of the whole community," said committee chairwoman Naomi Blumenthal (Likud), "The committee's decisions unequivocally reflect our intention that the transit camp at Addis Ababa should be disbanded and the residents brought to Israel."

The committee issued a list of resolutions at the end of the meetiog stating, among other things, that it is "a major natiooal and Zionist obligation to bring the Falasb Mura to Israel." Blumenthal described it as "a humanitarian issue," stressing that "every Jew has the right to immigrate to Israel.* The MKs said all the approximately 3,500 Falash Mura waiting in the Addis Ababa camp sbould be brought here based on the names listed in the "commu-nity book" after being identified and approved by a special team appointed by the governmeot.

Jospin named French PM

By ELDAD BECK

and news agencies

PARIS --- Socialist Lionel Jospin was named France's new prime minister yesterday, a day after leftists won parliamentary elections on vows to cut record unemployment and ease the rough road to European integration.

Conservative Presideot Jacques Chirac tapped Jospin just two hours after center-right Prime Minister Alain Juppe formally resigned.

Sunday night's defeat for Chirac's conservative coalition and Jospin's appointment give the Socialist leader the mandate to form a coalition government within two weeks.

A jubilant Jospin, talking to reporters on the steps of the presi-dential palace, called his meeting with Chirac "excellent." Jospin said he will form a new government "quickly, withio the week." Juppe and Jospin agreed to hold the formal hand-off of power this mnming at 11 a.m., the prime minister's office announced.

European Union foreign ministers yesterday sought to play down fears that the sweeping election victory could delay the single currency and a new EU treaty. At a meeting in Luxembourg to discuss the treaty, due to he agreed at an EU summit in Amsterdam in two weeks, ministers were generally caotious but said they saw no reason why the stunning triumph by the French left would disrupt plans.

e samening and senten

"The realities of power will push things in the same direction as they have been," Germany Foreign Minister Klaus Kinkel told reporters. "I think the economic austerity course will stay as far as the main points are concerned," he said. "(Bot) there will be nuances." The French Socialists have said they are committed to economic and monetary union (EMU), but with conditions, including a flexible interpretation of the Maastricht treaty.

In Paris, leading members nf the Freoch Jewish community said they feared the victory of the left-wing parties might have negative impact on diplomatic rela-tions between France and Israel, should the Middle East peace process remain frozen. "The new and young leadership nf the Socialist party is very different from that of the old generation, which had a very strong sentimeotal and ideological attachment to Israel and the Zionism," said one Jewish leader. "However, the young generations, that grew up in the pro third-world activism of the 60s world," said the leader, who asked not to be named. "Many of them are not only anti-

Israeli but also anti-Zionist. The political bureau of the Socialist party counts only a very small number of members that are considered as close to Israel." The probable participation of the Communist Party (PC) in the government might also contribute to an anti-Israeli stance, some Jewish leaders think.

Although the Oslo agreements brought a real rapprochement between the French PC and Israeli officials, the deterioration since in Israel-Palestinian relations led brought Robert Hue — the gener-al secretary of the Communist Party to cancel a planned first visit to Israel in March.

Prime minister-eleci Jospin has defined himself as "a friend of Israel," but his opinions on Middle East issues are oot clear. Israeli sources in Paris said French involvement in the Middle East ---reactivated by President Jacques Chirac after his election two years ago — will probably become low profile. The new administration's top priorities are the economic and social crises and the European Union.

Also, since President Chirac under the constitution retains control of foreign relations, he is unlikely to allow the government an independent Middle East policy.

Last day of Algerian campaign marked by bloodshed

ALGIERS (Reuter) — Algerian forces, preparing to deploy to pro-tect voters on Thursday, cast early ballots yesterday in a general elec-tion in which bombs killed 18 people and wounded more than 100 in the last two days of campaigning. The latest bomb, yesterday mom-ing, ripped through a market in the Algiers working class district of Bab El-Oued, killing at least seven people and wounding 37. It was the final day for around 8,000 candidates, running for 39 parties or as independents, to muster support in their bid for a place in the 380-seat National Assembly. A two-day "pause for reflection" precedes ballot day." Two other bombs planted on buses and described by officials as criminal acts — their term for Moslem fundamentalist attacks — killed 11 and wounded 77 on Mahfoud Nahnah urged support-Sunday, newspapers reported yesterday. The official toll was seven dead and 77 wounded.

Residents in the crowded capital, home to between three and four million people, said a later blast yesterday — thought at first to be another bomh — coincided with security forces hunting Moslem rebels in west Algiers. One resident said security forces using grenades had killed four rebels.

Despite the fear wrought by the bombs, the final day of campaigning saw a surge at rallies in Algiers, the big prize with 24 seats in the National Assembly.

The Islamist-leaning Movement of a Peaceful Society (MPS) filled the 20,000-capacity Harchi stadi-um in Algiers where leader rally were veiled womeo, a reminder of the MPS's former Islamic name Hamas, which it had to change to meet a new law banning parties using Islam as a platform.

The anti-Islamist secular party Rally for Culture and Democracy (RCD) of Said Saadi was later osing the same stadium for its final rally.

The National Democratic Raily (RND), grouping backers of President Liamine Zeroual and seen as a frontrunner, was putting on a concert at another stadium to

Arafat's 'thugocracy'

The gangland-style murders of Palestinians has even said explicitly that "those who have suspected of selling land to Jews continued with the slaying of waiter Mahmoud Ali Jamhour on Saturday. After midnight that day, Israeli police foiled the abduction of another suspected land dealer, and arrested the six Palestinians who had taken bim from his home near Jerusalem.

Four of the six Palestinians arrested are reportedly agents of the Palestinian security services. The denials by Palestinian leaders of a lack of official involvement in the murders are wearing thin. Reportedly, the Palestinians who were caught in the attempted kidnapping tried to dispose of a number of weapons during the chase, and one of these weapons was shown to have been used in the murders of two land dealers.

Jerusalem police chief Cmdr. Yair Yitzhaki, in a press conference on Sunday, stated that the police bave evidence convincing them of highlevel Palestinian Authority involvement. It might be thought that one murder, following the Palesinian proclamation of a death sentence for selling land to Israelis, would have accomplished the desired deterrent effect and the issue would be allowed to fade away. But according to a secret Israel Police document, the Palestinian Authority has a list of 16 suspected land dealers marked for death, including the three who bave already been murdered. These murders must be stopped.

It is not hard to understand that the Palestinians would attempt to restrict in some way the sale of land to Israelis. Israel and other countries restrict the sale of land to foreigners, one way or another. It is quite another thing, however, to impose the death penalty for such an offense. And it is yet another thing to execute people with the sort of death squads that mark brutal dictatorships,

This is first and foremost a human rights issue, as a number of human rights groups -Palestinian, Israeli, and international - have recognized. A regime that arrogates to itself the right to murder land dealers one day, will murder journalists, human rights activists, and other people whom it finds inconvenient another day.

In fact, these murders are just the latest piece in the pattern of corruption, censorship, and arrests that increasingly typify the emerging Palestinian police state. This is also, however, a challenge to Israeli sovereignty. The land-dealer campaign has not been limited to Palestinians who live within the jurisdiction of the Palestinian Authority. Bashiti was an Israeli citizen and Jamhour lived in Jerusalem and held an Israeli residency permit.

taken Israeli identity cards and think they have become Israeli citizens, we recommend that they not think that will buy them protection ... If be thinks because he has an Israeli identity card that we cannot try bim, then we shall try him via other means."

In the context of the recent murders, such a statement can only be understood as a threat straight out of The Godfather. The problem is, this is no movie: these are Istael's partners in the peace process. Israel cannot tolerate a situation in which the Palestinian Authority kidnaps or kills Israeli Arabs at will.

It was appropriate, therefore, that Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu held a special meeting of ministers, which decided to increase enforcement efforts, issue arrest warrants for Palestinians suspected in the murders, and protest Palestinian behavior in international buman rights forums.

In addition, Netanyahu correctly pointed out the connection between Israeli sovereignty, the peace process, and Palestinian buman rights, stating, "We know that those who do not respect the rights of their own people will not respect their neighbors."

The mystery here is why the Palestinians would, in public relations terms, sboot themselves in the foot so badly. Some bave tried to blame it on desperation induced by Israel -Medein even went so far as to blame Israel for the murders themselves. Others, more plausibly, suggest that the campaign is a way to distract from Palestinians' growing criticism of corruption among their leaders. It would be a sad thing, of course, if murdering Palestinians were an effective way to increase popular support for Palestinian Authority.

Whatever the case, PA Chairman Yasser Arafat must realize that his regime is rapidly developing the reputation of a "thugocracy" - a reputation that is sure to damage the international cachet which both he and the Palestinian cause have enjoyed. An international conference of donors to the Palestinian Authority meeting in Washington this week will likely be affected, not only by widespread reports of corruption, but hy these latest signs of barbaric behavior.

The challenge before Arafat, however, is much greater than repairing some bad publicity. He must realize that he is no longer head-

Who, after all, can be against a vaccine against anything?

No one seems to want to raise the obvious, if indelicate, question: Why embark on a bugc national venture to create a vaccine for a disease that is already extraordinarily preventable?

Unlike most communicable diseases, AIDS is not contracted casually. Unlike tuberculosis, it is not contracted by being coughed on in the subway. Unlike dysentery, it is not contracted by drinking the wrong water. To get AIDS you must, in all but ing a liberation movement in exile, but something that aspires to become a civilized state. The irony is that Arafat himself could become the greatest obstacle to fulfilling that aspiration.

A civilized campaign

oring is perhaps the best word to describe the Labor Party leadership race, which D ends today. For this, the four candidates are worthy of praise and thanks. It is a rare pleasure to report on a political contest in Israel that has been calm, civilized and courteous. There are those who say that a race in which the main runner is so far in front - according to the opinion polls, Ehud Barak bas an unassailable lead cannot be anything but boring; but such people know little of the Labor Party.

The pitiful and at times pathetic scenes surrounding Shimon Peres's vain attempt last month to move from the post of party chairman to a newly created one of party president were a case in point. It proved that, if it wants, the Labor Party and its leaders know how to put aside their common fight against the present government and unite in fighting among themselves.

Indeed, the temptation must have been there for Yossi Beilin, Shlomo Ben-Ami, and Ephraim Sneb to sling some mud at Barak in the bope of cutting down the majority he is expected to win today. Anything less than an outright (over 40 percent) victory for Barak would be seen as a defcat, while keeping him under the 52% Binyamin Netanyahu won when he ran for the Likud leadership will also hinder Barak's chances of taking the party by the scruff of the neck and installing himself as its undisputed leader.

True, the other contenders bave accused Barak of arrogance for refusing, except for one television appearance, to sbare a public platform with his rivals; but as political insults go, this is small change indeed.

The question facing the Labor Party, once the votes have been counted, is whether the civilized discourse that marked the campaign will continue as the party adjusts to a new leader in the post-Rabin-Peres era, or whether the internecine political rivalries which did so much to keep Labor in opposition during the past two decades will again appear.

The new Labor leader is likely to find, as has Netanyahu, that winning an election is one thing, ruling his party another.

That means that when you are placed in a nonsmoking section two rows away from the smoking section, on a trip from the US to Israel, you speud 10 hours of miserable smoke inhalation. Very friendly indeed?

Having just returned from the US under this condition on a night flight, it was impossible to breathe or sleep. There were many of us in these "non-smoking" rows who suffered the same way.

I have spoken to others who traveled on different airlines around the same time period and was told frankly that this is the only reason they don't fly El Al. Other overseas airlines do not permit smoking at all.

The US summer concert extravaganzas are gearing up. U2 is probably the higgest act on tour (they'll arrive in Israel in late September). But for most rock fans, the multiact festivals are the place to be this summer.

The Further Festival, featuring Dead relics and hangers-on like Bob Weir, Bruce Hornsby and Hot Tuna is gearing up for a second summer tour. And for the modern rock fans, there's always the Lollapalooza and other assorted festivals featuring the best of '90s rock.

And of course, it wouldn't be summer without Ringo Starr visiting the sheds with his All-Starr Band, this year featuring oncegreats from Procol Harum, Bad Company and Cream.

Rock Hall of Fame

The Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame held its annual induction ceremonies last month with the televised festivities dominating the US's television music channels' schedules recently with repeated screenings.

Highlights included the induction of Buffalo Springfield, The Rascals and Crosby, Stills and Nash.

The Springfield's appearance was especially entertaining, with its past members symbolizing the mer Dewey Martin a Nashville slicker, and of course Steven Stills and no-show Neil Young repre-

Theater

Although public attitudes towards the gay community and AIDS have changed since Angels in America first appeared, the play still has tremendous clout. Not only that, the present Haifa Municipal Theater version is an incomparably greater achievement than the Cameri production of four years ago.

In the earlier one, Tony Kushner's savage and surreal metaphor for the combined role of sex. politics, and power in global disaster was coarsely trivialised, his characters weakly burlesqued. This time round, however, Roni Pinkovitch, with his concentrated, incisive direction and stark mise en scene. gives the work a new lease of life.

His treatment releases what Lorca called "la oscura raiz del grita" - "the dark root of the scream" that lurks below the sur-face of this grim work. With Moshe Becker and Gil Frank in the respective roles of the dying homosexual WASP, Pryer, and his Jewish lover, Louis, the theme is realized with a grave intensity, controlled compassion and artistic delicacy. In contrast, macahre, agonized hut engaging sparks of humor and

Dudu Fisher and Hannah Laszlo

The Yiddishshpil production of Roszinkes mit Mandlen ("Raisins and Almonds") is a four-member cabaret starring Hannah Laszlo, Dudn Fisher, Ya'acov Bodo and Monica, It's fast-paced, well synchronized and nostalgic. And it's humorously updated in terms of political innuendo.

Bodo had a delightfully audacious skit about English being a bastardized form of Yiddish. Examples include drink, (trink), hread (broir), hutter (putter). Monica is another great talent with a fine voice and presentation. Laszlo converted her famous Clara, the cleaning woman character, into a hilarious Yiddish speaker, and she also proved her versatility in a variety of other skits. And Fisher was in his element singing A Chazandl oif Shabbes which allowed him to demonstrate the full range of his remarkable vocal abilities. Greer Fay Cashman Concerti featured Sinfonietta principle players as soloists. Clarinetist Yevgeny Yehudin's warm, artistic rendition of Mozart's Clarinet Concerto was technically impeccahle, communicative and splendid hy any standard. Contra bassist David Hanani overcame technical obstacles and gave a virtuoso presentation of Dittersdorf's Concerto in E Major. Excellent too was the full bodied tone and delicate phrasing of Roman Kott in Mozart's Horn Concerto in E Flat, K 417. Debuting young conductor Ronen Borshovsky drew cultured tone and articulate intonation from the sinfonietta in Corelli's Concerti Gross (op.6, no.8) and Domenico Scarlatti (no.2 in C). described as the most important role in the production, to lift the curtain up." Nabucco continued to play a major role in Habermann's life. Two years ago when the New Israeli Opera staged Nabucco, three fifths of the Habermann family met on stage. Habermann's wife Shuli was a member of the chorus and two of their three children, Dani (14) and Michael (8) participated as extras. Habermann himself and his first born Uri (17) watched from the other side of the proscenium.

Concert

Habermann is as excited about the world of law, especially public constitutional law which he is involved with. "I feel like I really ing of our democracy. These are Habermann, then 44, saw an ad for a conducting worknot just pretty words, I really mean it. I have this feeling that with my work I do leave something after me, at least the spirit shop organized by the Open University. "It was a workshop for professionals and amateurs of the legal decisions."

After that first conducting workshop, Habermann enrolled a second time two years later and earlier this season auditioned for the ICO. To his utter surprise he was accepted as the conductor in a special fund-raising concert. To prepare for the concert, "I listened to as many recordings of Jupiter as possible, then I learned the score hy heart." He also worked with conductor Itai

Talgam. Habermann, who was born with one hand only, "always dreamed of conducting hut maybe I never attempted it because of my hand. Technically it does not bother me at all. Initially I thought of conducting without a haton, hut two weeks ago I worked with Talgam and tried it with a haton. ... I will conduct the concert with the baton."

If Habermann had the chance, would he have changed his life and concentrate on music instead of law, and does he consider stretching his conducting adventure past the coming concert? "I don't know, it's a hard question. I cannot perceive conducting as something partial. I will be more than happy to conduct again if I will have the opportunity. I know there will be mistakes and problems when I'm on the podium, I'm not naive. The point is will it be creative?

"I will never conduct just as a gimmick. I will only do it if I prove to myself that I can actually say something. However you must realize that the fact that I conduct an orchestra does not mean that suddenly I am a con-

Not that they often do. Maheu, 49, is the founding artistic director of Carbone 14, the awardwinning Canadian dance theater company. It makes its Israel Festival debut on Thursday, with his Dead Souls "that has nothing to do with the Gogol povel except the name." says the man who's listed on his bio as actor, author, director, choreographer and designer.

He is talking about the show from his Montreal home where it has snowed two days prior, the day the company premiered his latest show, aptly titled Winter, and be giggles infectiously. But there is nothing funny about Dead Souls, which spans hoth generations and time. Its characters share memory and experience in an empty, dilapidated house whose very walls seem as alive as they are.

"I read the Gogol book in my teens, and loved it," says Maheu huoyantly, "but my dead souls are those of the abandoned house and the 'street people' of today. I am also powerfully moved by today's young people, their despair which can turn them to drugs. If you need a fix, it means you have no hope.'

The characters of Dead Souls. which premiered in April last year, are an old man and a little girl, lovers, addicts, couples all, past and present, intertwined in "a 90-minute series of tableaux vivants, [a work] that explodes with disjointed exuberance," as one critic put it. But the house is not just a shell, it is also a shelter, "a home, a place for people to cocoon. A home is the last refuge of privacy," Maheu adds.

Maheu has his own refuge, a house in the country about oneand-a-half hours' drive from his native Montreal "where I become a farmer," he says, and again that rich chuckle floats down the phone. "I prune. I plant trees, work in the garden, breathe, think differ-

Opera

The German Opera Berlin's guest performance of Mozart's The Magic Flute was intended to surprise. And the performance, directed by Gunter Kramer with stage designs by Andreas Reinhardt, in the New Israeli Opera, did so incessantly. This was a fast-paced, dynamic, inventive, colorful, effectstudded production. It was tastefully designed and was enjoyahly entertaining, especially if one did not expect it to always make sense. The singers were the performance's weaker link, except for Peter Edelmann's Papageno. His rich, resounding baritone, perfectly endearing singing and acting, and suhtly humorous, tongue-in-cheek antics were a joy to behold.

This is more than can be said about his colleagues. Rainer Trost displayed a pleasant, soft lyric tenor, though not altogether credible as a lover-at-first-sight. Bass Reinhard Hagen was an authoritative yet not quite awe-inspiring Sarastro, struggling bravely with his difficulties in reaching the required low notes. Susanne Elmark's soprano, as Queen of the Night, was bright and penetrating, hut occasionally somewhat squeaky. Soprano Fionnuela McCarthy, unlike the "meek and virtuous" Pamina of the text, radiated an overdose of assertiveness. The chorus and the orchestra of the Deutsche Opera Berlin sounded wellbalanced and maintained a fairly hrisk tempo under Lawrence Foster's direction. Ury Eppstein

Ballet

A lot of young talent got a chance to show off at the seventh Mia Arbatova Ballet Competition. On average, the level was higher than in previous competitions.

Out of 10 contestants who made it to the final stage, only two were born in Israel, the rest are immigrants from Russia and Georgia. Helena Dzehiashvili, a high school pupil from Ironi Alef won the first prize (6000 IS), Lena Dvoskin, a student of Liora Bing Hideker, who was prepared for the competition hy Gaina Shakrian, won second prize (4000 IS). Third prize (3000 IS) went to Ella Nagli, a student of Adam and Ilana Pasternak, who won the fourth prize (2000 1S).

Alexander Volitzky, the only boy at the '97 competition, received a special mention but the audience favorite was Anna Zovatova, the vivacious imp who has got loads of stage personality that should take her far. Ora Brafman

Federal Express launches own Israel-US route

By HAIM SHAPIRO

Federal Express (FedEx), the world's largest express transport company, began regular flights between the US and Tel Aviv vesterday with its own Boeing 727 all-cargo aircraft, which is to fly to and from Israel four times a week.

David Bronczek, the company's senior vice president for Europe, the Middle East and Africa, ooted that the decision to upgrade service to Israel came as a result of the international husiness community's interest in the growing economy here.

The new service, he said, would make it possible for Israeli exporters to have their products in major European market centers overnight and to reach the US only one full business day after they were sent.

Transport Minister Yitzhak Levy said the FedEx flights strengthened Israel's connection with the US. He described the carrier as a very important one, especially in its ability to provide door-to-door service for small packages. Bronczek noted that with a 25ton lift capacity, the Tel Aviv flights would make FedEx the first company in the express industry to remove virtually any weight and size restrictions for express shipments.

He pointed out that the flights would also have a special area for dangerous substances, which . are restricted on most commercial passenger airlines.

Bronczek said a third of Israel's $20.5 billion io exports. consists of high-tech and computer products, chemicals and textiles.

"Israel is fast becoming the Silicon Valley of the Eastern Hemisphere," he said FedEx, which was established 24 years ago, reported revenues of $10.3b. for its fiscal year.

The company has its major hub in Memphis, Tennessee, with subsidiary hubs in London, Frankfurt and Paris. It has 2 worldwide aircraft fleet of 583 planes.

Airline sources said yesterday that the new FedEx service would provide a challenge for Ei Al, its subsidiary Cal, and the commercial airlines serving

England call up Clark for injured Butt

LONDON (Reuter) - Midfielder Lee Clark was drafted into the England squad for the four-nation Tournoi de France yesterday shortly after transferring to first division Sunderland from Newcastle United.

England coach Glenn Hoddle named Clark to replace Manchester United's Nicky Butt who has a hamstring injury.

Sunderland, relegated from the English premier league last month, announced earlier on Monday that they had signed Clark for £2.5 million ($4.1 million).

Paul Gascoigne and David Beckham were flying to France with the England party despite picking up injuries in Saturday's 2-0 win in Poland in a World Cup qualifier.

Iran beat Maldives 17-0 in World Cup qualifier

DAMASCUS (Reuler) - Iran beat Maldives by a record score of 17-0 (halftime 6-0) in a World Cup soccer Asian zone group 2 qualifying match yesterday. The previous highest World Cup score was 13-0 when New Zealand beat Fiji in 1981.

Rodber becomes fourth Lions captain

PRETORIA (Reuter) - Tim Rodber became the fourth captain in ss many matches when the British Lions named their side to meet Mpumalanga (formerly South Eastern Transvaal) in Witbank IOMOTOW.

England number eight Rodber, who follows prop Jason Leonard, flanker Rob Wainwright and tour skipper Martin Johnson, leads the learn three years after he was sent off playing for England in South Africa.

Weizman wishes Israel good luck ahead of Russia

By ORI LEWIS

President Ezer Weizman vesterday received the national soccer squad ahead of their crucial World Cup qualifying match with Russia in Moscow next Sunday.

The players presented the president with a ball signed by the team and wished him a happy birthday, and said they hoped that they could present him with a much important present ~ a win against the Russians next week.

The squads then returned for training al Ramat Gan where the hot weather forced a curtailment of the session. Defender Avishai

Hill says oversteer may have killed Senna

COUTL

IMOLA (Reuter) - Formula One world champion Damon Hill told a court yesterday that oversteer might have caused the crash that killed Brazilian Ayrton Senna at the San Marino Grand Prix in 1994.

Hill, now with the Arrows

Janno picked up an injury and may miss the trip, while Felix Halfon is returning to fitness. Eli Ohana's calf injury is also said not to be too serious.

Eyal Berkovic, Haim Revivo and Ronnen Harazi will all join the squad today after returning from England and Spain. The national team will play a practise match against the Israel under-23 side tonight before coach Shlomo Scharf releases three players from the party which will travel to Moscow.

The under-23 side leaves for the US tonight for an friendly international against the Americans.

The Briton, who was No. 2 driver to Senna in the Williams racing team at the time of the accident, dismissed prosecution charges that the accident was caused when the threetimes world champion's steering column snapped.

Commenting on video footage taken from a camera on Senna's car seconds before the accident at Imola's Tamburello bend, Hill told the court: "My own feeling is that the car looks to be oversteering." As the court watched the same film on a hi-tech computer screen, Hill explained: "There are two distinct times where the car looks to be oversteering and that the steering wheel is exactly the way that I would expect to see to correct oversteer." Hill was testifying as a prosecution witness at the manslaughter trial of former team chief Frank Williams and five other defendents at Imola, near the track where Senna's car crashed into a wall at 200 kph on May 1, 1994.

Yamaha team, drove himself to the makeshift courthouse - in a converted theater - before sitting impassively throughout his three-and-ahalf hour session.

Williams team are technical director

Patrick Head and designer Adrian

Newey; none of the accused was in

Asked whether the apparent oversteer in the Brazilian's car was due to low tyre pressure or the state of the Imola track, Hill replied: "you cannot separate the two." "My idea looking at it is that the car seems to oversteer when it crosses the place on the circuit where there are some marks."

Hill's comments appeared to support the Williams defence lawyer Oreste Dominioni's claims in March that Senna's death may have been due to "anomalies in the asphalt" of the track.

Imola's circuit manager Giorgio Poggi, race director Roland Bruynseraede and track director Federico Bendinelli are also on trial. charged with allowing the 1994 San Marino Grand Prix to take place on a dangerous track.

tional midfielder had been wavering between signing forthe east London club and north . London rivals Tottenham Hotspur, who at the last minnte bad said they were interested in the player. However, the Israeli decided to plump for the initial frontrunners and an unusually longterm contract at Upton Park. West Ham were in fine shopping mood yesterday and also signed Andy Impy from First Division Queens Park Rangers for £1.2 million. Immediately after closing the deal, Berkovic headed for Heathrow Airport to board a flight back to Israel where he rejoins the national 'squad's training camp before leaving for Moscow tomorrow. Israe play Russia in a vital World Cup qualifier on Sunday:

Earlier, Taylor received a vote of confidence from coacb Geoff Marsh yesterday just three days hefore the first Test against England at Edgbaston, Taylor, who has not scored a Test half-century since 1995, was dismissed for 63 early in the day in his final innings before the Test.

"We'll sit down after this game with the three selectors and pick the hest side to win the Test match and 1'm sure he'll be there," Taylor said. Former Australian captains at 168 for six, needing a further 147 to make Middlesex bat again.

Inn and Greg Chappell have both called for Taylor's dismissal in favour of vice-captain Steve Waugh.

Marsh, Taylor and Waugh are the tour selectors.

Marksman Starek hits the target at long last By HEATHER CHAIT

Guy Starek needed 32 years for it to happen, and over the weekend he won the gold medal in the World Cup competition in Milan (60 rounds, prone position). Starek left the Atlanta silver and bronze medalists in 40th and 25th places respectively. Reeched the final with the third-best result, 593 points. Starek upped his performance, collecting 102.5 and first place. Last week in Munich. also in a World Cup event, Starek took seventh place.

Golf: The 36-hole championships at Caesarea Golf Club catered to juniors (18 years), seniors (50-75) and super- seniors (over 75).

Cyril Kaufman won the seniors division with his gross scores of 79-77. Second was Lionel Phillips with 78-79. In the seniors net group, Baruch Baaltaksa won with 151 and Basil Kaufman was second with 152.

Effie Been, just celebrating his 75th birthday, won the super-seniors event with his gross scores of 86-85. Second place went to the net winner Solly Friedman with a 157 net

Winning the junior division was 15-yearold David Adelman with his 78-75 gross total with 14-year-old Shlomi Asayag second with his 84-81, 165 total.

In the net scores, Tal Bilzman and Uri Shani both had 147 strokes but Bilzman's better last round sent him into first place. The second stage of the championships, including players with handicaps from 0-9, will be played from today until Friday. Taekwando: The national championships will be held tomorrow at Neveh Ya'akov's Community Center in Jerusalem. Over 120 contestants from 30 clubs throughout Israel and 20 judges will be part of the event.

The competition will begin at 9 a.m. with the finals at 5 p.m. followed by the prize giving ceremony.

Athletics: If competing alone doesn't produce results, maybe financial incentives will. At this year's national championships (Hadar Yosef, July 6-7), $5,000 will be offered to the triple-jumper who clears 17.50 meters. Given that Rogel Nahum's national record is 17.20m, the reward of $2,000 for breaking the record in the triple-, high-jump or pole-vault is probably more Konstantin Matusevich is the record-holder in the high jump with his 2.34 meters and Konstantin Simyonev holds the pole-vault mark of 5.76m.

Maccabiah minutes; Who will light the flame? For this year's Maccabiah opening ceremony on July 14, the public will decide who does the honors. From a survey of 50 well- known sportspeople, past and present. Among the names are Ya'acov Hodorov, Giora Spiegel, Uri Malmillian, Eli Obana, Ronny Rosenthal, Avraham Schneor, Ralph Klein, Mickey Berkowitz, Tal Brody, Doron Jamchee, Esther Roth, Yoav Bruck, Elazar

Amos Davidman, Shlomo Glickstein, Mansdorf, Amit Inbar, Gal Friedman, Gocha Chichiashvili, Baruch Hagai, Nahman Wolf, Yael Arad and Oren Smadja.

Swimming: Mickey Halika was response ble for the one new record at the Grand Prix series of swim meets in Monaco and Barcelona last week.

19-year-old Halika swam the 400 meters individual medley in 4:25.12, 44-hundredits of a second faster than the previous record to win the bronze medal and book his spot in the European Championships in Spain. Other noteworthy results were seventhe and eighth-place finishes for Uri Stift and Vadim Alexsev respectively in the 100m butterfly with times of 1:04.21 and 1:04.64 Cricket: In the latest round of first division matches at the weekend, Young Ashdod made 144/6 (R. Jhirad 37) to beat Ashdod A's 143 all out and Yeruham (153/6), had the upper band over Nctanya's 152, even with D. Silver contributing 67 runs.

In the second division, Eleven Stars made 267/8 (S. Walwatkar 66) to overcome Dimona A's 114 (A. Walwatkar 3/16, G. Tziawalkar 3/0) and Ramle scored 136/8 against Dimona C's 135.

This weekend sees Tel Aviv hosting Nevel Yonatan, Beersheba A against Lions Lod, Petah Tikva against Lod at Hadar Yosef and Kirvat Gat at home to Beersheba B.

CRITIC'S CHOICE

Renowned Russian baritone Dmitri Hvorostovsky presents a solo recital at the Henry Crown Symphony Hall in Jerusalem (9:30) - one of the real highlights of this year's rather dull classical music program. Mikhail Arkadiev is at the piano and the program comprises songs by Tchaikovsky. Mahler and Russian composer Syridov. Michael Agensiadi

THEATER

The riotous Cameri production of Shakespeare's A Comedy of Errors returns to the main stage. Director Omri Nitzan puts both sets of twins in 1980s Beirut, complete with warring militias. Dan Almagor's (he won the 1996 Israel Theater Prize for it) up-to-theminute translation keeps the jokes topical. The show won the ITP Best Comedy too. Tonight at 8:30. (Hebrew with simultaneous translation into English)

TELEVISION ELANA CHIPMAN ETV (2) 23 is airing a new Israeli cooking program, Tastes, at 7:00 tonight. The show, hosted by Hila

Natan Datner and Osnat Fishman star in the Cameri's production of Shakespeare's 'A

Comedy of Errors."

Alfret, will have famous chefs on every show, Each guest will prepare a meal representative of an ethnic group or food culture. There will also be experts on wine, coffee and pastries and on other aspects of eating. Today's program will concentrate on Italian food from Sardinia with guest chef Rita,

Cairo Geniza fragments on display in Jerusalem

BY BATSHEVA TSUR

The Cairo Geniza provides proof that Jews and Arabs can live together in harmony and gives us hope for the future of our region, President Ezer Weizman said as he opened an exhibition of the famed documents at the Israel Museum in Jerusalem yesterday evening. Some 50 fragments from the cache of documents discovered in 1897 are on loan to the museum, almost all of them from the Cambridge University Library. The exhibit will be open to the public until October.

Among the highlights of the exhibition are hand-written texts dating back to the 11th century. There is a corrected version of a page from Moses Maimonides's Guide to the Perplexed and other handwritten texts by Yehuda Halevi and Yosef Karo. The texts are written in Hebrew. Judeo-Arabic, Arabic and Yiddish.

The Geniza was uncovered by two sisters in the Ben-Ezra Synagogue in the Old Cairo suburb of Fusiat. The documents were identified by Dr. Solomon Schechter of Cambridge University in 1897. In the main, the documents describe the everyday life of the vibrant medieval Jewish communities in the Mediterranean basin. There are references to bridal dowries and land tracts, and lists of household items. There are also pharmaceutical prescriptions and medical remedies. And there are many texts, some of them illustrated, showing the connec-tions between the three monotheistic faiths.

But the Geniza also contains documents from further afield, including some written in Yiddish. One Oth-century Hebrew document is signed by the Jews of Kiev. It contains numerous Biblical names and may have been related to a community which sprang from the Khazars, scholars say.

The director of the Cambridge University Library, Prof. Stephan Reif, accompanied the exhibition to Jerusalem. The opening of the exhibition coincides with the convention of the International Council of the Friends of the Israel Museum, headed by the Baroness Nadine de Rothschild and museum president Teddy Kollek.

Manbar's trial opens today

By RAINE MARCUS

NEWS

Businessman and international arms dealer Nahum Manbar, who is charged with espionage and trading with a hostile state. goes on trial this moming in Tel Aviv District Court.

A panel of three judges – Amnon Strashnov, Shelley Timen, and Ze'ev Hamer – will conduct the trial behind closed doors.

Manbar, who was arrested in March, is charged with selling arms to Iran between 1990 and 1994, even after be was warned not to by Israeli intelligence agencies.

Manbar, 51, said in a 1992 interview that he had stopped all transactions with Iran of bis own volition. But apparently he was put under close surveillance by intelligence agencies, which discovered he was selling materials for the manufacture of chemical weapons, including mustard gas, to Iran via an intermediary. Manbar is also charged with

A new family of edible coatings for fruits and vegetables, which protect produce on their way from farm to table, has been developed by a Hebrew University team.

Varda Hershko, the chief researcher on the project while doing doctoral work at the HU Agriculture Faculty in Rehovot, yesterday received the university's Kaye Prize for Innovation.

The colorless, tasteless, chemically stable coatings are not only cheap, but they effectively protect fruits and vegetables from physical trauma or spoilage due to evaporation or oxidation. They prevent a juicy fruit or vegetable from losing moisture or a dry item from absorbing moisture.

The university did not release details on the exact composition of the coatines.

For nearly 30 years, apples and citrus have been coated with wax, which bas disadvantages. Few advances have been made since then in this field.

Hershko, working under the tutelage of Dr. Amos Nusinovich and in cooperation with Prof.

Haim Rabinovich, focused on studying the physical and chemical properties of the new coating. Using garlic as a model, they looked for ways of making the coatiog stick better to the produce. They found that the new coatings lengthen the shelf life of garlic while slowing the loss of moisture

The Japanese market for grapefruit presented a special challenge. The Japanese prefer green-peel fruit to yellow. But during the long voyage from Israel to Japan, the chlorophyll breaks down and the peel yellows, reducing its value in the market. The HU coatings allow the introduction of a known substance that preserves the green color.

The researchers note that coatings for produce should not be uniform for all fruits and vegetables but be designed according to the character and chemical structure of the peel and other qualities. The coating was patented by the Yissum research and development corporation and has aroused much interest among local citrus and mushroom growers. It is expected to be a hit abroad as well.

Jordanian princess invites top IDF female officers to visit

By ARIEH O'SULLIVAN

Visiting Jordanian Princess Aisha, who set up and commands the woman's corps in the Royal Jordanian Armed Forces, has invited a group of top IDF female officers to Jordan, as a further step in increasing military cooperation between the two countries.

Lt.-Col. Aisha, 30, said the IDF's Women's Corps is the third she has visited and she was impressed.

"We had an opportunity during the past two days to meet with women in the IDF and the air force and navy and to really talk with them of their challenges they are dealing with as womeo in the army," LL-Col. Aisha said in a meeting with Defense Minister Yitzhak Mordechai. "We bave a lot in common and we plan to continue learning," she added.

Aisha said she invited Brig.-Gen. Yisraela Oron, OC Women's Corps, as well as other female officers to visit with the Jordanian army. The princess later met with Chief of Geoeral Staff

LL-Gen. Amnon Lipkin-Shahak and dined at the Defense Ministry in Tel Aviv with Communications Minister Limor Livnat, Labor MK Dalia Itzik and Likud MK Naomi Blumenthal as well as Defense Ministry officials.

This is Princess Aisha's second visit to Israel. She accompanied her father King Hussein during his condolence visit here in March following the murder of seven Beit Shemesh schoolgirls by a Jordanian soldier in Naharayim.

Ben-Eliahu: We want to train more women pilots

Air force chief says affirmative action policy in place

By LIAT COLLINS

OC Air Force Maj.-Gen. Eitan Ben-Eliahu told the Knesset Committee on the Status of Women yesterday he intends extending the trial period for absorbing women pilot cadets into the Israel Air Force from four years to six or seven before drawing conclusions. "We really want it to succeed," Ben-Eliahu said. "If there are women pilots who can meet the criteria of pilot and combatant, we will have a larger pool of people to draw on, instead of just men. We will also be bappy to have contributed something to the equality of the sexes in Israeli society.

Ben-Eliahu said the air force has operated a policy of affirmalive action among women pilol cadets: whereas male cadets are assessed every five flights, assessments for the women take place after 15 flights. He also said the physical tests had been

and the existence of potential conflicts of interest amoog some members of governing bodies. Ben-Eliahu said he has asked for permission to allow women pilots and doctors to fly across said, of a proper balance between the good of the insurer and its the border on missions.

The committee meeting was chaired by Yael Dayan (Labor), who had invited Ben-Eliahu to give his report as a follow-up discussion on the subject.

"I have no doubt there are womeo with the relevant abililies to be top pilots and officers," she said. Dayan added that she has the impression the IAF is making an effort to turn out women pilots.

Naomi Chazan (Meretz) said the problem is that the pool of female candidates for the pilots' course "is so small the result is almost negligible."
